City mulls audit for Clark's campaign

Runner-up Maurice Lamirande says he would have won if not for secret list

A city committee is to hear allegations today that Rideau-Rockcliffe Coun. Peter Clark was given "a top-secret electoral tool called the Liberal List," which helped him win his seat by reaching Liberal voters with automated calls.

The committee is considering a request for an audit of Clark's election finances filed by Richard Cannings, the fifth-place finisher in the ward.

Cannings alleges Clark received a detailed list of federal Liberal supporters, worth $40,000 to $50,000, which Clark did not declare as a campaign contribution. Cannings suggests in his complaint Liberal MP Mauril Bélanger was involved.

"Mr. Bélanger has not provided any Liberal list," said Bélanger's campaign manager Etienne Grandmaitre Saint-Pierre.

Clark did not return requests for comment.

Homeless centre not welcome

- Some Sandy Hill residents plan to fight move of homeless centre to St. Alban's Church
- Church space more attractive, has lower operating costs: Centre 454

▶ Ottawa Centre Bed & Breakfast owner Janis King says her neighbourhood is already unsafe and adding a homeless centre on King Edward Avenue will make things worse.

Ottawa Centre Bed & Breakfast owner Janis King fears crime and drug use will increase in her neighbourhood if Centre 454 moves back to its original location at St. Alban's Church on King Edward Avenue.

"We have nothing against the homeless people. It's their behaviour. They bring conflict, drugs," she said.

The executive director of Centre 454, Mary-Martha Hale, said running the homeless centre at its current location on Murray Street is too expensive.

"Moving back into a church building will hopefully alleviate some of our costs and allow us to then put those resources into direct service," said Hale. She added that the church's green space would be a respite for the 235 homeless people who visit the centre daily. The centre was originally at St. Alban's from 1976 to 2000, until it was asked to relocate.

Coun. Mathieu Fleury will host a meeting tonight at the University of Ottawa to discuss the move.

Illegal?

- Sandy Hill residents and business owners have formed a group, Neighbours of St. Alban's, to fight the move of Centre 454 to St. Alban's Church.
- They fear the planned relocation of the Diocese of Ottawa-run centre will spread drug use, vandalism, litter and conflict in the community.
- The association believes the move is illegal under Ottawa city planning by-laws and said it has consulted with lawyers.

Heritage move challenged

Heritage Ottawa is challenging the city's decision to move a heritage building as part of the Lansdowne Park redevelopment, arguing its case at the Conservation Review Board of Ontario today.

The city plans to move the Horticulture Building, one of the city's rare Prairie-style buildings, to the other side of the old exhibition grounds to make way for a movie theatre and underground parking lot. In order to do that, council voted to remove the heritage designation, said Heritage Ottawa vice-president David Jeanes.

Even if Heritage Ottawa wins the hearing, the findings of the board are not binding. "It's only advice and the city can choose to ignore it," said Jeanes. JESSICA SMITH

Innovative Carleton prof to be honoured

Bailetti is a legend in local tech community: Purple Forge Corp. CEO Lead to Win program helped launch 110 tech companies in national capital region in 2009-10

JOE LOFARO
@METRONEWS.CA

A Carleton University professor who founded a program to help Ottawa-Gatineau tech startups launch their businesses will be honoured with the 2011 Ottawa Innovation Community Award.

Tony Bailetti will receive the award next month from the Ottawa Centre for Research and Innovation for his work in the tech industry, including his startup program called Lead to Win.

CONTRIBUTED

▶ Tony Bailetti

"We have changed the infrastructure to support technological innovation in Ottawa-Gatineau in a way that's quite smart," said Bailetti.

Bailetti and his colleagues decided fostering smaller companies with fewer employees would ensure greater chances of success than launching large firms with thousands of employees.

One of the companies that spun out of the LTW program is Blindsight Networks — created by two ex-Carleton students — which is known for its "BigBlueButton" web conferencing software.

A smarter desktop

Teddy Luong, who collaborated on the project with Waterloo-based Research In Motion, says his idea allows people to jot notes and drawings and work fluidly with a pen, but keep that work electronically. They can also move the projected "paper" to their phone or computer. The best part? When it's time to go home or un-clutter your desk, just switch off the projector and your documents are saved for later.

Tory misses debate, opponents attack

Chinese Community Service Centre hosts debate

About 60 people turned out yesterday to see three out of four candidates in Ottawa Centre debate issues important to the many new Canadians in the riding.

Conservative candidate Damian Konstantinakos didn't attend the debate and his party became a target for the others.

Incumbent Paul Dewar criticized a leaked Conservative strategy document which described some ridings as "very ethnic."

"We will push the federal government to hire more new Canadians in this town."
SCOTT BRADLEY, LIBERAL

"First of all, it's important that we don't use terms like 'ethnic' and 'very ethnic' and then exploit people to get elected," Dewar said.

"I'm asking in this campaign, 'What Canada do you want?'"
JEN HUNTER, GREEN

All three candidates made promises to improve the speed of refugee claims and help new Canadians get improved access to the job market.

Majority needed to quell separatism: PM

- A weak government fuels Quebec sovereigntists, Harper pitches in B.C.
- Michael Ignatieff focuses on Liberals' health-care reform plan

FRANK GUNN/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Prime Minister Stephen Harper and his wife Laureen serve dim sum to patrons of the Continental Seafood Restaurant in Richmond, B.C., yesterday.

Election 2011

Stephen Harper is making another pitch for a Conservative majority government, adding the resurgence of Quebec sovereigntists to the growing list of reasons he needs unfettered power in Ottawa.

Now is not the time for a weak minority, which is precisely what the forces of separation in Quebec are hoping for, Harper told a rally yesterday in Richmond, B.C.

The issue arose anew Saturday after Parti Québécois Leader Pauline Marois, who is ahead in provincial polls, won a resounding 93.1 per cent confidence vote from the normally fractious party.

Harper spent most of the weekend in British Columbia, a province where the Tories have a chance to pick up enough seats to form the first Tory majority since Brian Mulroney nearly 20 years ago.

Coincidentally, Liberal Leader Michael Ignatieff found himself on the same turf yesterday, attempting to contrast his position on health care with that of the government.

Within 60 days of a Liberal government taking power, Ignatieff said, he'd convene a meeting of the provinces and territories to begin hammering out a new health-care accord to replace the current agreement, which expires in 2014.

The Liberals are hoping health care proves to be the government's Achilles heel. The party is currently airing the most negative ads of its campaign, trying to depict Harper as the leader most likely to preside over the demise of medicare.

Harper's plan yesterday was to court immigrant voters by renewing his pledge to crack down on human smuggling, but was again called on to defend another Tory candidate eruption.

Wally Daudrich, a Tory candidate in northern Manitoba, had until recently a comment on his Facebook page calling Barack Obama the worst and least honest U.S. president.

685 Number of evacuees forced to flee their homes. Meanwhile, more than 795 roads have been closed due to overland floods.

About half of Manitoba is impacted by overland flooding and the waters are still rising, officials in that province said.

While the current flooding is not as devastating as 1997's Flood of the Century, it's now the largest on record.

Usually, the biggest story in any given flood year is the Red River, but this spring it's the Assiniboine.

The Red's largest tributary is experiencing water flows not seen in 35 years. That's when it recorded its worst flood, said Steve Topping, Manitoba Water Stewardship's executive director.

And should the Assiniboine crest at the same time as the Red, it could impact several properties inside the City of Winnipeg.

Officials are forecasting it to crest around the end of April.

Jet price includes engines, feds say

Defence officials have shot down reports that Canada would be responsible for supplying the engines needed for the F-35 fighters.

Documents obtained from the defence department saying the F-35 engines "are provided as gov't-furnished equipment" prompted questions whether the cost of the engines were included in the $9 billion price tag to buy 65 of the stealth fighters.

But the Conservatives and Defence officials yesterday insisted the price made public all along includes everything needed to operate the aircraft — even the engines.

"The $9 billion overall acquisition cost includes 65 aircraft with engines installed," the Defence department said in a statement.

ROYAL KINGDOM

Jaipur's last maharaja dies at 79

Thousands of people poured into the courtyard of a sprawling palace in the western Indian city of Jaipur yesterday to pay their last respects to Brigadier Sawai Bhawani Singh, the city's last maharaja.

Singh, 79, died late Saturday in a hospital on the outskirts of New Delhi where he had spent the last two weeks, his daughter Diya Kumari said. He had suffered from high blood pressure and a lung infection.

Singh served as the maharaja or hereditary ruler of Jaipur after his father Sawai Man Singh's death in June 1970. Jaipur was one of hundreds of tiny royal kingdoms that dotted India until the country's independence from Britain in 1947.

The rulers continued to hold onto their titles after independence. However, Singh served as maharaja for only a few months until India formally abolished the royal titles in 1971.

Nevertheless, he continued to be revered in western India's Rajasthan state and was often referred to by his royal title.

Singh served in the Indian army and fought in the 1971 war against rival Pakistan.

Rickshaw race in India may cost 'at least a limb'

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ A participant waves from an autorickshaw after the flag-off of the Rickshaw Run, an annual charity event, in Kochi, India, yesterday.

Charity race runs through India's mountains, valleys and highways

Traditional drums rolled as hundreds of spectators bade farewell and good luck yesterday to scores of flimsy autorickshaws starting the ride of a lifetime: From India's southern tip to its northeastern edge.

Keeping limbs intact will likely be a very real challenge for the 180 people from 19 countries who began the 5,000-kilometre ride as part of the Rickshaw Run, a five-year-old charity event.

Riding in a 150cc, four-gear, three-wheeled autorickshaw through any crowded Indian city for just a few kilometres can be quite a thrill.

A two-week journey tackling the country's highways, back lanes, mountains and valleys in what the organizers describe as a "glorified lawnmower" qualifies as a bona fide adventure sport.

The run kicked off in Kochi in the southern-most state of Kerala and will end in Shillong, the capital of Meghalaya in the northeast.

"We are risking life, or at least a limb, for charity," said Jenny Lucas, part of a three-woman team from the U.S. "And for adventure, of course."

The Rickshaw Run equips teams with an autorickshaw, permits, a starting point and a destination, after which participants are pretty much on their own.

Close-quarters combat kills 17 in western Libya

- Troops pounded Misrata, the last major rebel foothold
- Among dead: NGO worker, opposition activist

Holding out under a rain of shelling and sniper fire, Libyan rebels fought Moammar Gadhafi's forces yesterday in close-quarters battles in the city centre of Misrata.

Government troops have been laying siege to the city on Libya's Mediterranean coast for weeks, prompting repeated international warnings of a dire humanitarian situation as well as calls for NATO forces to intensify airstrikes on Gadhafi's forces there.

Yesterday government troops, who have pushed into the city centre from the outskirts in recent days, pounded Misrata with mortar rounds and rocket-propelled grenades, said resident Abdel-Salam, who only provided his given name for fear of retribution.

"Residents have become so accustomed to the sound of mortars and missiles," he said. "Snipers are still on the roofs of tall buildings shooting at anything that moves in the city centre."

Rebels fought government forces back from an area around a central produce market, regaining a small sliver of territory, said Rida al-Montasser, a local activist reached by Skype.

He said a hospital report that he received from a doctor, showed 17 people, including rebels, were killed and 74 others were injured. He said Gadhafi forces had fired at the city's hospital yesterday.

Security forces fired on anti-government protesters in Yemen's capital yesterday as hundreds of thousands of marchers — including many women — packed cities around the country to denounce the president and remarks he made against women taking part in rallies demanding his ouster.

The massive turnout suggests opposition forces have been able to tap into fresh outrage against Ali Abdullah Saleh after his comments Friday that men and women mingling at protests violated Islamic law.

Deadly tornadoes hit U.S.

- At least 45 dead after 62 twisters slam six states
- Worst storm since 1984 when 22 tornadoes killed 57

A devastating storm system spawned dozens of tornadoes as it barreled from Oklahoma to North Carolina, decimating communities in six states and leaving at least 45 people dead in its wake.

Emergency crews searched for victims yesterday in hard-hit swaths of North Carolina, where 62 tornadoes were reported the night before from the worst spring storm in two decades to hit the state. Eleven people were confirmed dead in Bertie County, Zee Lamb, a county manager, said.

Another four were confirmed dead in southeastern Bladen County, bringing the state's death toll to at least 21.

Daybreak brought news of a horrific death toll in Bertie County, about 210 kilometres east of Raleigh.

The tornado moved through about 7 p.m. Saturday, sweeping homes from their foundations, demolishing others, and flipping cars on tiny rural roads between Askewville and Colerain, Lamb said.

At least three of those who died were from the same family, he said.

One of the volunteers who scoured the rubble was an Iraq war veteran who told Lamb he was stunned by what he saw.

"He did two tours of duty in Iraq and the scene was worse than he ever saw in Iraq — that's pretty devastating," Lamb said.

"There were several cases of houses being totally demolished except for one room, and that's where the people were," he said. "They survived. Pretty devastating."

In Virginia, Department of Emergency Management spokesman Bob Spieldenner said one apparent tornado ripped across more than 12 miles through Gloucester County, uprooting trees and pounding homes to rubble while claiming three lives. Spieldenner said two others were killed when a vehicle ran into flash flooding near Waynesboro.

North Carolina officials have tallied more than 130 serious injuries.

U.S. 'culture of bargain-hunting' keeps prices down

Canadians say they want low prices, but they don't go to nearly the length of Americans to score a deal

With a loonie worth more than a U.S. dollar, bargains abound for Canadian shoppers who hit the stores south of the border.

The reasons for the price difference defy easy explanation. But some suggest an unwillingness of Canadians to spend the same time as Americans to hunt for a bargain may contribute to the gap.

"Shopping seems to be a very big part of what goes on in the U.S. People go down to Florida, to Georgia, to the southern U.S. and one of the activities that you do there are tours going to outlet malls," says David Soberman, a marketing professor at the University of Toronto. "If you're wondering why prices are lower, it might be part of the explanation."

Market moment

PRICES AS OF 5 P.M. FRIDAY

TSX	Dollar

Oil	Natural gas 1,000 cu ft
+ $1.55 US ($109.66 US)	$4.20 US (– 1.7¢ US)

Gold contracts $1,486 US (+ $13.60 US)

Soberman suggests that if Canadians want bargains, they must change their shopping habits, comparison-shop and "patronize the store that has the lowest price."

Michael Mulvey, marketing professor at the University of Ottawa, says the larger middle class in Canada may also play a role in the price gap.

"When you have a larger number of people that are struggling, it does put pressures on to bring prices down," he said.

"Wal-Mart is the place that people go to … partly because they don't feel ripped off when they go there." THE CANADIAN PRESS

A stroke of genius

Two University of Maine researchers may have solved the problem of "golf-ball pollution": What happens when a ball goes flying off the green to land in a lake or the ocean? Engineering professor David Neivandt and bioengineering major Alex Caddell are experimenting with a golf ball made from ground lobster shell. Neivandt says the biodegradable balls are intended for use on cruise ships or at driving ranges near bodies of water.

UAE pushes for more smartphone control

Tighter restrictions on RIM's BlackBerry devices proposed by the United Arab Emirates would likely apply to other smartphones, too. The UAE's telecommunications regulator wants to limit access to the Blackberry Enterprise Server system, which provides the most secure form of communication. It is used by many firms and government agencies to keep data safe. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Only organizations with 20 or more BlackBerry accounts could use the BES system under the UAE's new rules. Others would have to rely on a less-secure system that is easier for authorities to monitor.

TALE OF TWO SERVICE CUTS

"Pay more, get less" is hardly an engaging campaign slogan, and nobody on city council ran on it last fall.

But that's what's on offer this month, a prudent distance from the next election, with $19.5 million cut from bus service and the end of weekly garbage collection next year for an expected annual savings of $9 million.

Tax cuts and caps are an easy sell to voters. We even once elected a guy promising zero tax increases. But when you ask us what services we're willing to give up for those savings, our enthusiasm withers.

The math, however, can be unforgiving, with transit threatening to eat up an ever-increasing share of the budget and garbage piling up inexorably and poisonously in landfill.

"... paying more and getting less could actually end up paying off in the long term."

Some 6,500 made a fuss about the transit cuts and the city backed down on some of the more egregious ones, and young parents will get an optional alternate-week pickup of diapers added to the new biweekly garbage schedule.

Still, before the revised package of cuts comes into effect in September, transit riders will get hit with yet another fare increase of about 2.5 per cent. Yes, that compares favourably to the 7.5 per cent annual hikes of the past three years, but it all adds up. Our ad campaign for boosting ridership, the only way to make transit work, is counterintuitive: Pay more, get less.

In the move to biweekly garbage collection, at least the city is cutting a service it actually wants us to use less, in hopes of encouraging more black, blue and green bin action.

Our current $91 all-you-can-pollute special, which allows every household of whatever size to dump however many bags of whatever at the curb and forget it, is not sustainable.

But the green bins, some users complain, are icky. We want our refuse whisked away without having to smell the consequences. The unpopular new order imposes more of the work onto individual households (another way of paying more) but it will also reconnect us to the consequences of our consumption. Our garbage doesn't disappear after all; it adds to the mountain of crap at Trail Road.

The advertised savings per household, about $28, is unlikely to be felt amid annual 2.5 per cent increases in property taxes. This is a case, though, in which paying more and getting less could actually end up paying off in the long term.

Worth mentioning

LONDON. Britain's government has begun the process of reviewing the ancient, discriminatory rules of royal succession, so if Prince William and Kate Middleton's first child is a girl she would eventually become queen.

The current rule that puts boys ahead of their sisters "would strike most people as a little old-fashioned," Deputy Prime Minister Nick Clegg said Saturday.

The Cabinet Office said the government accepts that some aspects of the succession rule "could be discriminatory." It said the government has started discussions with British Commonwealth nations that would be directly affected by any change because they recognize the British monarch as their head of state, but declined to release details of those talks.

William is second in line to the throne after his father, Prince Charles, who is Queen Elizabeth II's first-born child.

Charles' sister Anne is lower in the line of succession than her younger brothers Andrew and Edward.

Don't stop to smell this flower

Spring is in the air, and that means an unpleasant smell for one greenhouse at Ohio State University.

A 2.4-metre tall rainforest plant that's known as a "corpse flower" because it smells like rotting flesh is getting ready to bloom.

The Columbus Dispatch reports greenhouse co-ordinator Joan Leonard has been growing the flowers since 2001, and this would be the first of five to bloom.

Leonard says smelling the Amorphophallus titanium for the first time will be the culmination of a decade of work. But it will be a quick experience because the flower withers after a day or two.

She expects the bloom to open in May, revealing its umbrella-sized "petals." When that happens, the university will have visiting hours to give people a peek at the rare plant.

Will and Kate get a TV movie

Hollywood is looking to cash in on the Royal Wedding with a raft of made-for-tv movies The resemblance of the on-screen Kate and William to the real-life version is questionable, as are the set locations

▶ Camilla Luddington, right, and Nico Evers-Swindell play the title characters in the Lifetime TV movie William & Kate.

While they prepare for their walk down the aisle April 29, Prince William and Kate Middleton can rest assured that their romance has earned the Lifetime Television seal of approval, as the U.S. cable channel will be debuting William & Kate, a made-for-TV movie about the royal couple's courtship, tonight, 11 days before they tie the knot.

William & Kate chronicles the early days of the couple's long courtship, including their first meetings at the University of St. Andrews and later coping with the intense media scrutiny that comes with dating a member of the royal family. "I love the you no one gets to see but me," the on-screen version of Middleton gushes to her royal beau.

Finding actors who look anything like the real-life happy couple was apparently too much of a challenge, as stars Camilla Luddington and Nico Evers-Swindell's similarities to Kate Middleton and Prince William end at their height difference and hair colour — though even here, Evers-Swindell has a bit too much going on, resembling more a ginger version of Twilight star Robert Pattinson than the thinning-haired second-in-line to the British throne.

The actors aren't the only ones straining to pass themselves off as their British counterparts: The Lifetime movie was filmed entirely in Los Angeles. Scenes at St. Andrews were actually shot on UCLA's sunny Westwood, Calif., campus, as the university's grounds were some of the few places in the area that looked "old" enough to pass for the 600-year-old school.

Resemblance issues aside, Luddington and Evers-Swindell certainly aren't short on enthusiasm. "Lifetime viewers are going to get a great love story," Luddington says of the movie. "If you're romantic at heart, you're going to love it."

Lifetime is also debuting a six-part documentary, Royal Wedding of a Lifetime, prior to the big nuptials at Westminster Abbey.

Another U.S. cable network, the Hallmark Channel, is also getting in on royal action, with their own film about the couple, William & Kate: a Love Story, that won't debut until August. Perhaps the longer lead time will allow them to find actors with more of a resemblance to the real William and Kate.

Not the first royal TV movie

Prince William is the latest Royal to get the made-for-TV treatment, but he's certainly not the first. In fact, his parents' wedding was chronicled in not one but two films — and one even spawned a not-too-pleasant sequel.

The Royal Romance of Charles and Diana (1982)
Starring Christopher Baines as Prince Charles and Catherine Oxenberg, a cousin of the real Charles, as Diana Spencer, the film was probably most notable for featuring Olivia de Havilland as the Queen Mother.

Charles and Diana: A Royal Love Story (1982)
The second film rushed onto TV screens in the year following Charles and Diana's nuptials. This American-made version starred David Robb as Charles and Caroline Bliss as Diana. As for notable supporting cast members, Sir Christopher Lee stepped in as Prince Philip.

Charles and Diana: Unhappily Ever After (1992)
Despite her real-life bloodline to the royal family, Oxenberg reprised her role as Princess Diana for this "sequel" to The Royal Romance of Charles and Diana, chronicling in pulpy soap opera detail the dissolution of Charles and Diana's marriage.

Recalling Nirvana

Dave Grohl ready to embrace his Nirvana days once again • New Foo Fighters album features contributions from key members of Grohl's past

Try as he might, it's been near impossible for Dave Grohl to convince some critics and music fans that his legacy as a songwriter is worth more than his years drumming for the seminal band Nirvana.

Never mind that it's been 17 long years since the death of grunge icon Kurt Cobain, and that Grohl has penned hit after hit.

From the Foo Fighters first major single This Is a Call to alternative radio staples Best of You, All My Life, Monkey Wrench, My Hero and Everlong, few other bands have been as commercially popular and prolific.

In fact, the Foo Fighters have grown so big that Grohl jokes he's now considered just about as uncool as it gets in the rock universe, at least among cynical hipster types.

"You meet kids in younger underground rock bands and I'm like Bon Jovi to those people," Grohl, 42, laughed during an interview this week in Toronto.

So it's somewhat surprising that Grohl has decided to unabashedly reflect on his Nirvana days again, both on the new Foo Fighters album Wasting Light and in the band's documentary Back And Forth.

CHRIS YOUNG/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Dave Grohl of The Foo Fighters

New album

- Wasting Light doesn't deviate much from the Foo Fighters' winning formula of hooky, straightforward loud rock but what's different this time is the way the album was recorded.
- Rather than recording in the band's state-of-the art studio, they recorded in Grohl's garage on old-fashioned analog tape, eschewing the digital techniques commonly used today.

For years, Grohl has been waiting for the right time to work with some of his old Nirvana collaborators again, but until now had been too sensitive about the idea.

"It seemed there had to be some distance between (Nirvana and the Foo Fighters) and for years I've really had to balance that to give Nirvana the respect it deserves. I wouldn't be here if it weren't for Nirvana," Grohl said.

Wasting Light was recorded with producer Butch Vig, who worked on the classic Nevermind, and former Nirvana bass player Krist Novoselic is seen in the documentary playing on the track I Should Have Known. At the tail end of the movie, Vig hypothesizes that the song is about the Nirvana days and Cobain, which Grohl doesn't deny.

"When I first started writing that song it was about someone else that I was involved with and at the end of the day I said to myself, I should have known that this was going to happen," Grohl explains in the movie.

This week, Grohl said enough time has passed that he can acknowledge his Nirvana history and embrace it.

"You just have to kind of shut off that switch that keeps you concerned about what other people think," he said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Metro recently interviewed Game of Thrones author George R.R. Martin

BRAYDEN SIMMS
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS NEW YORK

In transferring these epic works from the page to the screen here, have you had to make many changes?
Well, of course, I didn't actually do it. So the challenges here were largely those faced by the show runners and the screenwriters, David Benioff and D.B. Weiss.

But they have done quite a faithful adaptation, I think. There are differences certainly. They've added a few new scenes. They've cut things, scenes here and there and certainly lines.
In any sort of television or film adaptation, you don't have the space that you have in prose. But for the most part ... it is my story and it's the same characters and the same principle major events.

GETTY IMAGES

▶ George R.R. Martin

I think my fans are going to be very happy with how faithful it is. Most of the changes I've seen are clearly been made just to accommodate the budget, accommodate the limits of running time.

I keep reading all over the place about how you started writing these books because they were un-filmable, and you wanted to go to amazing places like this. Well, now, it's been filmed. Are you kind still pinching yourself?
I am, actually. Sometimes I think I've fallen through a rabbit hole and I'm in Wonderland here. It's amazing not only that they could film, but, of course, the amount of attention that they're getting. And, you know, the cast that we've assembled, the global thing, it all has me pinching myself.

Could you lay out for us how big of a participant you were in putting this on?
I'm going to be writing one episode per season if the show goes forward.

There's part of me that would like to write more than one episode per season, but I have to finish the books and the books, of course, are enormous and they take a lot of time.

I've been working on this last one for more than five years and I'm only now, you know, at the end of that.

And then there's two more beyond that.

So Dance With Dragons will come out on July 12th, but I've got to go pretty quickly and start the next book.

Trump delays Apprentice decision

Donald Trump says he has put off agreeing to an extension of his Celebrity Apprentice reality show while he weighs a presidential bid.

The real estate mogul and potential Republican contender says he told NBC on Friday he could not commit to a three-year contract extension for the series until he decides whether he's running.

Trump spoke at an event at his Mar-a-Lago estate on Palm Beach. He offered familiar messages questioning U.S. President Barack Obama's birthplace.

He also said the U.S. should be entitled to Iraqi oil and praised the ultra-conservative tea party.

Trump says he's encouraged by polls showing him with a strong following and says he'll make an announcement on his campaign plans before June.

Actor taken into custody after alleged drunken row with wife

Nicolas Cage was arrested in New Orleans over the weekend on charges of domestic violence and disturbing the peace, according to TMZ.

Sources say a "very drunk" Cage and his wife, Alice Kim, were arguing loudly outside, prompting a taxi driver to alert the police. When they arrived, Cage reportedly taunted the cops with, "Why don't you just arrest me?" Eventually, the officers obliged.

Kim is reportedly denying any domestic violence occurred and is not planning to press charges.

Smurfs: I think the movie looks colourful. But the lines, are they supposed to be funny?

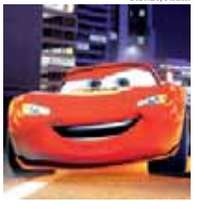
Winnie the Pooh: It looks funny. Good job Disney!

DREAMWORKS

Kung Fu Panda 2: Awesome, think I want to see it. This is a great movie for your kids.

DISNEY/PIXAR



Cars 2: Looks pretty good, I like it.

Do you think kids will want to see this? Why?

Yes, but not because it looks good. It is because it is their parents' beloved characters and in 3-D!

The bird versus monkey war makes kids fans in seconds.

Yes. Little kids love talking animals. Movie companies love to make movies about kids' favourite subjects.

Yes, it seems better than I thought, but kids might look at it and say, "I don't want to watch another Winnie the Pooh movie."

Of course! Who wouldn't want to see a talking panda doing Kung Fu with Jack Black's voice?

Kids loved the movie Cars in 2006. What makes you think they wouldn't like this one?

What do you hope happens to the main characters?

I hope they go to Central Park.

I hope Rio gets a chance to swim in the ocean.

I hope the monkeys make the zookeeper eat bananas and I hope he can ride on an elephant.

I hope Owl stops being so bossy.

I hope the characters are the same as in the first one.

Probably a good 65 per cent. It is probably going to win awards.

A 41 per cent chance. I don't think it looks quite funny enough.

The perfect treat for Passover

Baked goods for the Jewish holiday must be made without flour This Honey Coconut Cake employs alternatives

To be suitable for Passover, baked goods must be made without flour. This cake replaces it with a blend of matzo meal and ground nuts that then are flavoured with honey, coconut, orange zest and spices. The result is a satisfyingly syrupy-sticky cake that is wonderfully delicious.

Preparation

1. Heat the oven to 150 C (300 F). Coat an 20-cm (8-inch) springform pan with cooking spray, then line the bottom with parchment paper.
2. In the bowl of a food processor, pulse together the almonds, coconut and matzo until the mixture is reduced to coarse crumbs.
3. In the bowl of a stand mixer, combine the eggs, honey, sugar and salt. Beat with the whisk attachment on high until very thick, about 7 to 8 minutes. Stir in the zest, cinnamon and cardamom. Fold the coconut and almond mixture into the eggs in 2 batches. Pour the mixture into the prepared pan. Bake until a toothpick inserted at the centre comes out with a few moist crumbs, 35 to 40 minutes.
4. While the cake bakes, make the syrup. In a small saucepan over medium-high, combine the water, sugar, honey, orange juice and cardamom. Bring to a boil and cook, stirring, until the sugar is dissolved. Set aside.
5. When the cake is finished baking, use a skewer to poke holes across the surface of the cake. Pour 160 ml (2/3 cup) of syrup over the cake. Allow to cool.
6. To serve, run knife along the outside of pan and remove sides of the pan. Transfer to serving platter and remove bottom of the pan. Peel off the parchment paper if it doesn't come off. Top with toasted coconut and serve with extra syrup.

What to do with all your spring cleaning items Some simple ideas to help you re-purpose that junk you've accumulated over the years

With flowers soon ready to bloom, now is the time to start thinking about spring cleaning.

For months your closets and drawers have been accumulating junk, so it may be good to start purging those drawers of anything that has not been used or worn in the past year.

And what can you do with all the items you no longer need?

As the popular saying goes, one man's trash is another man's treasure. Why not use those treasures to do good for those in need? Try some of these simple ideas.

ISTOCK PHOTO

Don't throw away those old clothes — recycle them by donating them to a charity.

Donate clothing

There are a number of different charities and organizations with drop boxes in parking lots or others that pick clothing up from your doorstep to sell or give to people in need.

Host a garage sale

Collect all your new or gently used items cluttering your home and sell them with the purpose of donating all the funds raised to a charity.

Organizations, such as Christian Children's Fund of Canada, have environmentally-friendly items like fuel-efficient stoves and rainwater harvesting tanks, which you can purchase with your earnings. By picking a specific item or setting a goal for the amount of money you would like to raise, you will increase people's enthusiasm to help you reach your goal. Not only will this sale create more room in your home, but by advertising that the money will go to charity, your sales will also set an example for others in your community.

Recycle

Be sure that any items that cannot be donated or given away are disposed of in the most environmentally friendly way. Take left over clothing or furniture to your local dump where they will help you sort your items into recyclables and other waste.

RECYCLING IDEAS ON VHS MOVIES

Do you have a suggestion for recycling VHS tapes beyond Craigslist, Freecycle, etc? I've read you shouldn't put them in your garbage due to chemicals on the black tape.
Maureen of Port Moody, B.C.

Oh VHS tapes; those were the days. If the ones you own are too damaged to view and hence donate or give away, recycling is an option. The Recycling Council of BC has a great website (rcbc.bc.ca) with an easy-to-use search engine, or what they call the RCBC Recyclepedia. All you have to do is select the type of material you want to recycle, "electronic," then the item, "VHS tapes," and select the city you live in. It's that simple.

The bad news from the Recycling Council of BC is that "VHS and audio cassette tapes are difficult to recycle because the ribbon of tape cannot be recycled, only the plastic portion. Some companies request that you take the ribbon out of the cassette before you drop them off." I won't keep you in suspense; the results for your area are: London Drugs — Green Deal Recycling Program at greendeal.ca or Pacific Mobile Depots at pacificmobiledepots.com.

Given RCBC's cautionary note, I'd suggest calling ahead before you start pulling out reels of tape. I'm not aware of chemicals found on or leaching from the tape. You could always wear gloves if you're concerned.

Live outside of B.C? Check out earth911.com and search VHS tapes, then enter your postal code or city to find a recycling depot near you.

Eco-friendly wedding

When it comes to your wedding look to the backyard

Depending on your petal of choice, wedding flowers can drastically weigh down your budget — especially if they're not in season or grown locally.

Rather than paying for exports, why not follow in the footsteps of Kate Middleton (who will have an arrangement full of myrtle and other petals) and walk down the aisle with a gorgeous bouquet comprised of flowers and herbs?

Take a peak at your own garden or head to your local florist and don't be afraid to ask for seasonal petals.

As for herbs, lavender, basil, mint and thyme are easily found at the grocery store, and will not only look beautiful in a mixed bouquet but smell fragrant too.

CLEANING UP IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

TERESA KRUZE
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

She was fired from her first job — on the first day she reported to work. Her employers told the new immigrant from Hong Kong that her English language skills weren't strong enough.

It was only a brief setback for the determined young woman. Today, the successful married mother of two is running her own business, calling the shots and inspiring others to follow her lead.

Studying economics at York University, Amanda went on to land a job at IBM in client relations. "I talked to a lot of business owners and really got inspired," she said.

Months of research followed. She came up with a business plan and decided to start her own cleaning company. Her mother was incredulous. "Are you nuts? You're leaving your six-figure job at IBM to clean toilets?"

Now four years later, the award-winning entrepreneur has 20 employees at Clean4Me and is looking into franchising her successful operation.

"Let go of your fears, doubts and disbeliefs. Be courageous, embrace change and start believing in your dreams," she said.

Amanda Collucci did and now she's her own boss. Her mom is proud.

Amanda's tips:

- Know your purpose and understand why you're in business.
- Understand the industry and what resources you will need.
- Find a mentor or advisor. It will accelerate your success.
- Believe in yourself and conquer your fears. Have faith and know that you can get through any challenges.
- Think big, dream big and play big. Don't set limits.

STUDENT VOICE

CARLA KAVINTA
TALENTEGG.CA

I recently got hired as an intern at KBS+P, a marketing and advertising firm in downtown Toronto. Although I have learned a great deal from sitting in on meetings and completing project tasks, the most valuable and practical skills I have learned were from having one-on-one meetings with executives in the company.

I was surprised by not only their willingness, but also their eagerness to share their knowledge and experience.

What shocked me most was that these senior people approached me to share their knowledge of the industry, as well as provide their advice on career goals and how to succeed in the advertising business.

They have continually followed up with practical advice and have generously shared an ample amount of reading material to explore the industry further.

Most importantly, they have made a genuine commitment to educating their interns, knowing that we could potentially be the future of the company.

Their sincere interest in my career development has inspired me to work for the firm and has pushed me to work hard for the company.

Where Carla is now

I am currently finishing my last year in the commerce program at the University of Toronto. I was accepted to a global internship program for the summer and hope to return to KBS+P in the fall.

Key take-aways from Carla's school-to-work transition

- Take on internships while you're still in school to gain work experience.
- Ask senior executives for their career advice — they've been where you are and know what it takes to succeed.
- Use your new connections to help you land a job after graduation. If you go above and beyond during your internship, they're more likely to hire you after graduation.

Lauren's resumé

Lauren Friese:

A distaste for technology

Some youth are questioning the proliferation of technology and the role it plays in their lives

If technology had a fan page on Facebook, Will Tilleczek wouldn't like it. He couldn't, considering he has no profile on the social networking site.

The 19-year-old university student, in fact, has no online presence at all beyond an email address he checks a couple of times a day. His days as a cellphone user are numbered, as he plans to give up his mobile device when the contract with his wireless provider expires in a couple of months.

Tilleczek's antipathy to the technology so popular among his peers doesn't stem from any negative experiences — he simply believes his time is better spent away from a screen.

"You find yourself wanting to use (technology) even when there's no good reason," Tilleczek said. "It keeps you from wanting to be alone and taking some time to think."

Tilleczek said portable devices often tempt him to make calls or send texts regardless of whether or not he has anything to say. He decried text messaging as "impersonal," adding the rapid-fire messages that friends often exchange to make plans often result in misinterpretation.

Research suggests Tilleczek's attitudes don't reflect the norm for young Canadians. Matthew Johnson, director of education for the Media Awareness Network, said data from both the U.S. and Canada indicate technology use is on the rise in nearly every age group, but particularly among youth.

"When we talk about how many young people are online, the number is very close to 100 per cent," Johnson said.

But anecdotes from the most current crop of research subjects suggest Tilleczek's approach may not be as anomalous as it may seem on paper, Johnson said, adding he's aware that many youth are beginning to question technology. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Learning science from a distance

Technology allows distance learners to perform labs at home, such as virtually dissecting a frog online

One of the questions that parents and students often have about distance education high school courses is concerning the practical application of knowledge, such as lab work, are fulfilled. This is especially true for those considering a science course like biology or chemistry.

With today's technology, distance education courses have evolved from reading black and white text about labs in a text book to participating in online interactive activities.

"As studying at a distance becomes readily available to anyone looking to earn high school credits or to upgrade skills on their own time, it is vital that the student gets the full learning experience," says Sarah Irwin, managing director of the Independent Learning Centre (ILC.org). "For example, learning Grade 9 science requires the dissection of a frog. Our interactive tools allow students to virtually perform a full dissection online, in the comfort of their home, library or wherever they choose to study."

▶ Online courses include digital components.

Reaching far beyond textbooks, modern instructional designers include various methodologies to engage students and support learning.

A learner studying independently can now expect courses to include digital components such as videos and news clips, online discussion forums and interactive tutorials, creating a learning experience that entertains and engages while educating, earning credentials and meeting the expectations of the curriculum. Mike Fisher broke a tie at 10:21 of the third period, and the Nashville Predators took advantage of Bobby Ryan sitting out to beat the Anaheim Ducks 4-3 yesterday for a 2-1 lead in the first-round series.

The NHL suspended Ryan for two games Saturday for stomping Predators defenceman Jonathon Blum's foot in the Ducks' 5-3 victory Friday. Ryan will also miss Game 4 on Wednesday in Nashville.

Martin Erat had a power-play goal and an assist, David Legwand and Jordin Tootoo also scored, and Ryan Suter had two assists for Nashville.

Teemu Selanne scored two goals, and Corey Perry had two assists. Matt Beleskey also scored for Anaheim.

Brandon Dubinsky's goal with 1:39 left snapped a tie, and the Rangers' struggling offence woke up enough to beat the Washington Capitals 3-2 yesterday to get New York back into the first-round playoff series.

After the Rangers managed only one goal in two losses at Washington, Dubinsky, Vinny Prospal and Erik Christensen figured out young Capitals goalie Michal Neuvirth to help New York cut the series deficit to 2-1.

Henrik Lundqvist was sharp again, making 24 saves for the win.

New York got 35 shots through on Neuvirth after a combined 47 in the opening two games — 2-1 and 2-0 losses.

Alex Ovechkin had a goal and an assist for the Capitals, 1-4 in series in which they lead 2-0.

The Rangers have erased only one such deficit to advance.

Game 4 of the Eastern Conference matchup will be at Madison Square Garden on Wednesday night.

Her 64-save performance yesterday limited the damage as the Canadian women emerged with a 7-0 victory.

"Give her a lot of props, taking that many shots can't be easy," said Canada's Meaghan Mikkelson.

It's Boston's first consecutive victories of the season. The Red Sox began the day 3-10, the worst record in the major leagues, and can win the series against Toronto when Daisuke Matsuzaka faces Ricky Romero in the traditional Patriots Day game today.

Lester gave up one run, six hits and three walks while striking out five. He was pulled with two on in the seventh after an error by shortstop Jed Lowrie.
